

Beyond first results from LIGO: future directions in gravitational wave science

Nergis Mavalvala

MIT

The Laser Interferometer Gravitational-wave Observatory (LIGO) detected gravitational waves for the first time in 2015. Since then there have been a couple more detections of binary black hole mergers. I will discuss the instruments that made these discoveries, and the path forward to mapping the gravitational wave sky.